Dear Josh,

Further to your note of December 5th, I can now tell you that Mac Burnet is making plans for 1974, which include a three to six month absence based largely in Basel at the Basel Institute for Immunology. He will may appreciate an invitation to visit Stanford and he is doing some theoretical work in the general field of aging about which he could lecture, if desired. I do not know whether he definitively plans to go via the States or not, but an invitation from you might help him make up his mind.

With warmest good wishes and looking forward to seeing you in June.

As ever,

G. J. V. Nossal.
